Note and Comment

The school parade was O. K.

The Missouri mule held his own—he was here in all his glory

The fine chickens were a center of attraction. Poultry raising is a leading industry here.

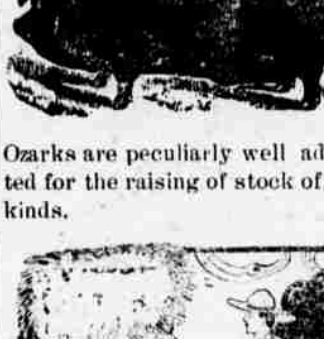

The extent and variety of school exhibits was a high tribute to the efficiency of our schools

The interest shown in stock and cattle is commendable as the Ozarks are peculiarly well adapted for the raising of stock of all kinds.

Some fine blue grass, milo maize, string beans, feterita, cotton, and many other products on which no premiums were offered were on exhibition.

Paul Evans, director of the State Fruit Experiment Station, had personal charge of the fruit exhibit and brought some of the best products for display here.

Hon. L. J. Page delivered a Republican address to a good crowd in the park Saturday afternoon.

Hon. Joseph A. Wright was here and was scheduled for a Progressive speech, but this was postponed until Oct. 28. Fulton S. White, editor of the Ozark Countryman of Springfield, was announced for a speech on farming Friday, but did not arrive until Saturday and consequently did not deliver his address.

Extra copies of this week's Mirror may be had for 5c. Send a copy to your friends; or, better still, hand us 25c and we will send the Mirror, including this issue, until Feb. 1, 1915. Let everybody take a look in the Mirror.

Following out the theory of giving credit where credit is due too much cannot be said in commendation of the untiring effort put forth in behalf of the stock show by Dr. F. H. Riley. He was constantly on the job and devoted his entire time and energy for the show's success. As the instigator of our annual agricultural and stock show, he has been the leader in the work, and his ambition was that this year's show should be bigger and better than ever. How well he succeeded is now a matter of history.

Letter to Musical Readers of the Mirror

When I began these letters it was my purpose (now only partly realized) to tell of my ideals, why firmness alone can do most for pupils, why real teaching must be based upon broad knowledge and is more than can be easily estimated, and to prove that persons who care for music (if they can hum a tune and step in time and have proper environment) have talent to justify music study (under right instruction) and last to describe the early lives of about twenty world-famous musicians so that persons who have given but little thought to music could see how much time it took the "most talented" to succeed in, and could then the better decide how much time they, with modest talents, ought to spend to gain the slight(?) abilities they desire.

Missed lessons so shorten my income that I must give up my purpose for a time at least.

NOTICE TO PUPILS LIVING WITHIN TWO MILES:

Except in case of confining illness, from this forward, pupils must take lessons at appointed time or arrange for a later period in same week. I have set aside certain days for lessons. Pupils have engaged this time. If they wish this time for another purpose, they should appoint another half hour for the lesson missed or pay at the regular rate, or quit. Ask me why!

Yours for earnest work,
 Adv CHAS. WALTER BEACH.

M. E. Pastor

At the annual M. E. Conference at Marionville, Rev. J. W. Needham was assigned to the churches at Mansfield, Ava and Seymour. We understand he is to preach one Sunday each month here, one at Ava, and the remainder of the time at Seymour. We do not know which Sunday he will preach here.

Rev. Mr. Needham has been superintendent of the Lebanon district and is a very able preacher. His appointment to the pastorate here meets with general approval as our people know of his ability.

Rev. J. J. Wolfe, former pastor here, goes to Richland.

Rev. E. M. Hoff is the new superintendent of the Lebanon district.

Rev. D. D. Killain returns to Hartsville, Rev. H. R. Osborne to Mountain Grove, and Rev. B. E. Niblack to Marshfield.
